

Graduate School at UMBC Dissertation Fellowship

Spring 2027 Application Deadline: Friday, October 30, 2026.

Overview: The UMBC Dissertation Fellowship provides promising doctoral candidates with the financial support necessary to focus on writing and completing their dissertations. This fellowship grants students the critical time and resources needed to expedite the final stages of their degree.

Eligibility & Conditions:

Except in extraordinary circumstances, these awards are limited to one term per student. To be considered, Ph.D. candidates must be in good academic standing. Additionally, they must have:

- No other financial support: This fellowship is strictly for students who do not have UMBC-administered financial support (such as an assistantship) during the spring term. Note: Funding status will be verified prior to application review and applicants with a GA contract through spring 2027 will not be reviewed.
- Time to commit and focus on writing: Recipients must commit at least 20 hours per week exclusively to dissertation writing for the entire spring term. No other work assignments, besides dissertation writing, may be associated with this fellowship.

Award Details (Spring 2027):

The fellowship is awarded for the spring term only and includes:

- A maximum stipend of $12,500.
- Tuition remission for 9 credits of course 899 (billed at 2 credits). Please note: The university provides tuition remission for the cost of 899 tuition only. Fellowship recipients are required to pay all mandatory fees associated with 899 registration.

Selection Criteria:

A committee selected by the Graduate School Leadership Team will review applications. Priority will be given to students who demonstrate that this award will provide the critical support needed to complete their writing, finalize revisions, and successfully defend their dissertation within the fellowship period (by the end of the spring term). Selection is based heavily on the applicant's readiness to finish, and the quality and feasibility of their management plan.

Application Materials Applicants must submit the following documentation as a single PDF:

2. Letter of Support from the Chair of the Dissertation Committee that:
